Hi Paul et al. I realize that it is past the June 30th deadline for changes/adds to the Water Plan Update, but I am hoping these minor editorial/procedural changes can still be made. First, let me congratulate you all on a fine document and very impressive and effective process. I was not intending to make any substantive comments (I could have input, but do not feel it is that relevant). I also realize that these edits may seem a bit trivial given your awesome overall task, but they have relevance to me in my academic work, and I hope you can address these things.

Please add two things to the acknowledgements and references:

- (1) I was involved in at least two workshops/briefings on the issue of Coordinating Land Use and Water Resources as an invitational speaker/commentor. However, I was not put on the list anywhere. I am not sure whether to add my name to "Subject Matter Experts" or "Commentators" but I think it would be appropriate to add: Jeff Loux, University of California, Davis Extension to one or both of those lists.
- (2) I also noticed that in the references in the back you do not reference my now not so new book: Water and Land Use: Planning Wisely for the Future of California by Karen Johnson and Jeff Loux, Solano Press Books, 2004. I think it is the only full book devoted to the subject, and a key reference for anyone working in urban water supply today. Please add it to your list.

Thank you for your consideration.
